In fact, I didn't see a real peacock until I was an adult, but throughout my childhood I marveled at their beauty. Their bodies are like ethereal paintings. Their crests, eyes, breasts, back, and tailfeathers, all are works of art. I don't know how many times I asked myself as a child, "How can the peacock bird be so colorful, so beautiful?"

Our worlds, in Mexico and elsewhere, are filled with color and natural beauty. I am deeply inspired to paint this natural beauty in real and abstract ways. Every time I render nature through painting, I learn more about the natural beauty of our surroundings, appreciate it more, and am grateful for the opportunities to paint and enjoy it.
